We have been dedicated to improving efficiency and safety for our customers worldwide and ourselves for over 60 years through our innovative products, comprehensive services, and industry-specific solutions.

Health and safety in the workplace

In our daily operations, we strive to avoid harm to our employees and the environment while also adhering to relevant statutory and trade association regulations and provisions and providing a healthy working environment.

We promote measures to improve health and well-being in the workplace as part of our workplace health promotion programme. To continually improve our processes and prevent hazards, we regularly train our employees, set up first aiders and fire safety assistants, and draw up emergency plans. We encourage our employees to take an active role because long-term improvements require the commitment of each individual.

Environmental protection and energy efficiency

We strive to continually improve our environmental performance, particularly through developing innovative technologies and the responsible use of natural resources. We aim to reduce our environmental impact within the limits of our economic and technological capabilities through well-designed processes. Compliance with legal and regulatory environmental requirements is one of our principles.

The primary task of our environmental management is to establish defined environmental goals, design and implement steps to attain these goals and measure and evaluate environmental impacts. The aim is to ensure ProMinent's long-term corporate stability, while at the same time taking into account climate-related risks.

Through providing information and training, we try to encourage our employees to behave in an environmentally responsible manner and raise their awareness in these areas. This improves our environmental performance and makes our operations more sustainable and cost-effective.
